<ul> <li>Identifies factors across domains, environments &amp; life stages</li> <li>Recognizes own learning preferences</li> </ul>
Recognizes own learning preferences
е с.
4. Develop individualized teaching & learning plans
Writes clear objectives in observable terms
<ul> <li>Writes clear &amp; complete task analysis</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>Identifies prerequisite skills</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>Develops clear recording mechanism</li> </ul>
5. Use a variety of observation & recording techniques
<ul> <li>Describes a range of observation &amp; recording methods</li> </ul>
Matches technique to purpose and setting     Employe and models respectful longuage
Employs and models respectful language
Recognizes own biases and filters
6. Demonstrate basic teaching techniques
Identifies a variety of approaches for teaching single steps of a task
Identifies a variety of approaches for teaching whole tasks
Discusses techniques for providing and fading assistance
Discusses the importance of flexibility and revising teaching strategies
N: Course Content: The following global ideas guide the design and delivery of this course:
1. Teaching and learning are interdependent processes which are integral roles of classroom and community support practitioners. Teaching is the act of providing opportunities for learning; learning is the adaptation to changes in situations, information and interactions.
2. Teaching and learning are lifelong activities which occur across all life domains and environments.
3. Individuals are unique in how they teach and learn. Classroom and community support practitioners can enhance the teaching and learning processes by identifying, recognizing, respecting and responding to learning characteristics of the people they support.
4. Effective practitioners plan strategies to maximize the learning potential of each situation, adapt
