

September 30, 1994

Division Academic

Date:

Source:

Department Arts & Humanities

REV

Revision of Course

Information Form IX

Dated: December 1, 1993

SOCIETY AND THE INDIVIDUAL

3

PHI 151

D:

Course No:

Description:

Semester Credit:

Subject Code:

Prerequisites:

Philosophical reasoning about social and political issues

Such as:

Eg. Section C.E.H.

moral existence. Issues and theories raised by such as by contemporary

1993.12.01:

thinkers as Plato, Aristotle, Hobbes, Kant, Mill, Nietzsche and Marx, as well philosophers will be explored. Topics may include:

Sections: I, II, IV

liberal education, social and political liberty, human nature, egoism, relativism, utilitarianism, and autonomy. Students will be encouraged to develop their own thinking about the topics covered. This course is recommended to students who want an introduction to fundamental philosophical ideas as part of their liberal arts education. It will also serve for a foundation for further work in Philosophy.

1994.09.30:

Sec

